(5) ECTS credits :

1 full academic year = 60 credits

1 semester = 30 credits

At the Faculty, a full-year education system is implemented, so the academic year is not officially divided into semesters. However, if a student decides to study at our Faculty for only one semester, if there exists a decision in this respect passed by the Faculty Board, he/she may be allowed to take the lectures regarding the related course belonging to that period of time only.

Elective courses are offered for both semesters. During first year of education, students can (and must) choose 1 elective course for the first semester and 2 elective courses for the second semester. During second, third and fourth year of education, students can (and must) choose 2 elective courses for each semesters.

The regular student attending our faculty is expected to enter two mid-exams and one closing examination (the 'final exam') from each lecture. In case of failure to achieve the required minimum grade, the student is offered the chance to enter one further exam, named as the 'make-up exam'.

The passing grade is sixty out-of one-hundred. In other words, a student is expected to achieve a minimum average mark of sixty.

For the calculation of passing grade, the average of mid-term exams is taken. With the help of this average, the contribution points, which are previously determined by the faculty management, are calculated. Then students take a final examination. To pass a course, student must achieve a total score of 60. This total score is the sum of final exam's grade and the contribution points from the midterm exams. But to pass a course, student must become at least 50 points from the final exam. These rules are applied for the make-up exams too.

If the average mark of a student from a lecture at the end of the two mid-term exams attains 80 (out of a full one-hundred) he/she is exempted from the final examination for that lecture. The student is deemed to have passed that course.

The examinations are written exams in general. But professors can independently choose the style of examinations. The number of questions varies from lecture to lecture and according to being a mid-term exam or the final exam.

If an ERASMUS STUDENT willing to study at our Faculty for only one semester has been allowed to do so by virtue of a decision in this respect passed by the Faculty Board, the exam system he/she will be subject to, will depend on the content of that decision. However, in such case, it is most probable that the student will be allowed to select whatever subjects he/she wants, regardless of which year they are lectured in (provided they attain a minimum of 20 ECTS and do not exceed the allowed maximum of 30 ECTS). In this case, the student will enter separate exams for each subject. The modality of the exam shall depend on the discretion of the Faculty Board, based on the preference of the lecturer. However, the passing grade will still be 60/100, provided that the final exam result does not fall below 50/100.

FOR ELECTIVE COURSES TAUGHT IN ENGLISH, GERMAN AND FRENCH, THE ERASMUS STUDENT is expected to enter one mid-exam and one closing examination (the 'final exam') from each lecture. In case of failure to achieve the required minimum grade, the student is offered the chance to enter one further exam, named as the 'make-up exam'.

The passing grade is sixty out-of one-hundred. In other words, a student is expected to achieve a minimum average mark of sixty.

For the calculation of passing grade, the note of mid-term exam is taken. With the help of this note, the contribution points, which are previously determined by the faculty management, are calculated. Then students take a final examination. To pass a course, student must achieve a total score of 60. This total score is the sum of final exam's grade and the contribution points from the midterm exam. But to pass a course, student must become at least 50 points from the final exam. These rules are applied for the make-up exams too.

If the note of a student from a lecture at the end of the mid-term exam attains 80 (out of a full one-hundred) he/she is exempted from the final examination for that lecture. The student is deemed to have passed that course.

Contribution points mentioned below are added to exemption note, if there is not exemption from final examination, added to final or make-up examination note and this final note is regarded as achievement note.
